

The image shows a white plastic mechanical component, likely a part of a medical device. It features a circular base with a central protrusion. A horizontal bridge is mounted on top of the base, with two small white cylindrical components (possibly pistons or plungers) attached to it. Two thin metal wires extend upwards from the bridge, each passing through a coiled metal spring. The wires terminate in two circular white caps. The entire assembly is set against a dark background.

KY-S4023